WHAT'S FOR DINNER?

A GUIDE TO DELIGHTFUL
FAMILY MEALS
DURING QUARANTINE

100% CORONA-PROOF

Why family dinner?

CONNECTION

We eat facing each other. It's the sitting face-to-face, inviting interaction, give-and-take, that matters most.

COMMUNICATION

As we tell stories and catch up on the day's ups and downs, children are invited to listen and share their ideas, dreams, and opinions. This builds their muscles of communication.

DISCIPLESHIP

As we discuss events of the day, we will naturally weave in faith and explore what it means to honor Christ in each situation.

IDENTITY & BELONGING

When we're sharing a hearty meal and a heartfelt conversation, we're developing a sense of who we are as a family.

LEARNING

Planning and preparing meals together teaches kids real-life skills.

RESTING

In the stressful, uncertain times we're living in, a slow meal around a table with people we care about takes off the stress, replenishes the joy, and renews the strength.

Helpful tips

before you start

Make family dinners a priority, start small, and just do it.

Shut off the TV. Do not bring phones or any types of screens to the table.

Have your children help. Assign children jobs, such as cleaning and setting the table. This allows them to feel more engaged with mealtime, and it will be less work for you.

Light candles to give family dinner a sense of sacredness and wonder. (Family members can take turns lighting candles.)

Have everyone come to the table at the same time. It's not about being hungry, but about being together.

Feed bellies with food and nourish souls with conversation. The idea is to create a safe place—a place where everyone feels free to say whatever is on his or her mind.

Slow down and savor the process. Dinnertime is not a project to push through; it's a celebration of life and family, and the Giver of them both.

One of the best ways to teach kids important lessons is through stories. However, it's always important to be careful with what we share. The stories you tell and the details you choose to keep or skip will largely depend on the age and internal wiring of your children. Be open, honest, vulnerable, and wise.

Our children's tomorrow is shaped by the stories we tell them today.

Wisdom

to live by

Avoid doing it all yourself, because kids can help in the kitchen too. Get them involved in food preparation and they may become more interested in food and willing to taste new things.

Make sure children come to the table hungry. How? Don't let them graze. Give only water in between meal and snack times.

Consider letting your child decide how much to eat. God gave them an amazing ability to self-regulate their eating in response to internal hunger cues (which can easily be overridden by bribes or demands from adults.)

Serve only one meal for the whole family. Try not to offer an alternative or enter into any trade-offs with your child. This will tell your child they have control over the situation when you should ultimately be in control.

Children do not eat well when they are pressured to eat and will not starve to death if they miss a meal or two. If your child refuses a meal or does not eat anything in about 15 to 20 minutes, calmly remove his or her food.

Present food in an appealing manner. Use a variety of bright food colors and textures, as is appropriate for your child's age. Avoid strong flavors, as a child's taste buds are more sensitive than those of an adult.

Make mealtime interesting. Try serving meals in a variety of interesting ways: meals by candlelight, barbeque or picnic, a "just finger foods" meal, breakfast foods for dinner, and so on.

Things to try

THE FAMOUS PERSON GAME

Each person should wear a sticker on their forehead with a famous person's name on it and then, by asking the other family members questions, guess who they "are."

FRUIT OF THE SPIRIT

Read Galatians 5:22-23. Talk about the fruit of the Spirit, and then let each family member affirm another person about a fruit they see in that person's life. Finish by eating a fruit salad or by trying some exotic fruits from your local grocery store.

MEANINGFUL MEALTIME PRAYERS

Let's be honest—sometimes mealtimes prayers lose their life and heart, and turn into a forced and rehearsed ritual. Perhaps this could be avoided if you let each individual choose a different prayer for the meal at least once a week... and have some fun with it. Here are just a few ideas:

- Sing Doxology.
- Say a prayer chain—go around the table and let each person tell God something he or she is thankful for that day.
- Read a passage from Scripture—don't worry about having to add anything to it. Let the verse be the prayer.
- Take 15 seconds of total silence, letting each family member pray quietly. You may be amazed at how powerfully prayerful a pause can be!
- Move the prayer from before the meal to after the meal. Simply changing when you say the prayer can help people focus more on the act of praying.

I am sorry for what I said when I was hungry.

Prayers to pray

Pray for your family that the spirit of fear won't find any room in your hearts, and that God would fill you with peace and hope.

Pray for our leaders who are making decisions at the local, state, and federal level that God would give them wisdom and clarity to do what is best for all.

Pray for people who are infected with COVID-19 or facing quarantine, that the Lord would heal and comfort them.

Pray for the scientists and researchers who are doing their best to understand the disease and to end the pandemic.

Pray for medical professionals and caregivers, that God would keep them safe and healthy, and give them compassion for every patient in their care.

Pray for Christians everywhere to be bold and use every opportunity to talk about the hope and peace found in the Gospel.

Pray for the protection of those with weak immune systems and the elderly. They are most at risk. May God sustain their bodies and spirits.

Pray for business owners and families facing financial stress, that they would remember that God is with them.

Pray for grocery store workers and delivery drivers, that the sickness would not touch them.

Pray for the protection of our missionaries. May the Holy Spirit inspire them to proclaim the gospel, that the name of Jesus Christ might be glorified around the world.

Pray for churches and ministry leaders, that they would know how to best show God's love and point their communities to Jesus.

For single mothers and fathers, that God would provide everything for the care and flourishing of their children.
